Elizabethan Feasts

The menu of six courses—including “galantine of capon,” “roast turkie-bird with chesteine nut dressing,” “askuutasquash of Virginia,” and “raspberrie solyubbe,” among other delicacies—reassures: “The foode hath beene wol tasted therefor feare ye no potions.” The entertainment, “musicke, dancing, juggling, tumbling, madrigals,” and a play, Res Publica by Nicholas Udall, promises a merry evening with never a dolorous moment.

What is here a most cold and dreary month will be brightened by the Guild for Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies' Elizabethan Feasts “to be held in ye Lister Banqueting Hall, Thursday ye evening twenty-fourth daie of Februarie at seven of tye clock under the patronage of ye President of ye University of Alberta, H.E. Gunning,” to which all noble lords and ladies, gentlemen and gentlewomen are invited.

Preparations for the Feasts have been underway for almost a year, and everything about the evening will be as nearly authentic as possible. The menu has been well researched and a bibliography of the sources of the dishes will be included in the program each guest will receive; the play, dating from 1553, will be performed in costume on a stage like that of the Elizabethan theatre; the music will be played on instruments from that time, as well. Lighting will be, appropriately, candles in specially made candleholders. President Gunning and members of the Guild will be in costume, and guests are urged to wear Elizabethan garb (or evening clothes), with gentlemen wearing doffing caps.

The catalyst to the Feasts is the energetic Alderman (Chairman) of the Guild, Arlette Thomas, Assistant Professor of Romance Languages. Mme Thomas has been assisted in the planning by members of the Guild and by students and members of various departments who have contributed their time and energy generously and will be appearing as musicians, actors, and revellers, as well as working behind the scenes. At the Feasts, Bill Meilen, Associate Professor of Drama, will be Master of the Revels, President Gunning will give the Toast to the Queen, and Raymond Grant, Associate Professor of English, will give the grace “after the Scots manner.”

There is a limit of 150 places at the Feasts, and reservations may be made in person at the General Offices of the Departments of Drama, English, History, and Romance Languages, or by mail to Helen Liebel-Weckowicz, Professor of History and Bursar for the Feasts, or to Mme Thomas. Patrons should consult the seating plan and indicate where and with whom they wish to be seated. Tickets for the Feasts are $17.50 per person, $15 for Guild members and students. Reservations will close one week in advance of the Feasts on 17 February.

In the rhymes of Bill Meilen
 Be ready then to come unto the Dance . . .
 Be Merry, and put on thy best attire
 To warm thyself at Nicholas Udall's fire
 To hear the song of Sackbutte, Lute and Flute
 Most gentle Patrons, art thou here to moot.

FACULTY OF LIBRARY SCIENCE GAINS ACCESS TO COMPUTER-BASED NETWORK

The University of Alberta Faculty of Library Science has gained access to a network that permits searching of more than two million bibliographic records. Computer terminals will be used to instruct students in the use of the system and to provide demonstrations of its capabilities.

The Ohio College Library Center (OCLC), which began as a cooperative network of libraries in the state of Ohio, has become the largest internationally recognized network of its kind, employing over a thousand terminals in approximately seven hundred libraries. Records are added to the system from Library of Congress MARC (Machine-Readable Catalogue) tapes and also from member libraries, which provide bibliographic information on items they have acquired that are new to the system. By this means, the number of new items requiring original cataloguing in each library is kept to a minimum, thus saving both time and money. Libraries have the option of using their computer terminals as entry points to the system, which then serves as an on-line union catalogue of all the libraries' holdings, or else they can ask OCLC to prepare and mail presorted computer-produced cards to be added to their conventional card catalogues.

COMMITTEE OF CHAIRMEN'S SURVEY RESULTS

The following material has been received from T.M. Nelson, Chairman of the Committee of Chairmen, regarding the opinion poll conducted by that group in early December.

Here are the tabulations which have been made of the voting, both as totals and percentages. It appears from the voting that 71 percent of the respondents desired change and that 55 percent were in general agreement with the ideas put forward by the Chairmen's

Richard Kerr

A complete list of current Library hours for the Winter Session is found on page two. The students shown in the above photographs are studying in Rutherford Library, on the third floor and in the Reference Services area on the main floor.

Committee and that 38 percent favor the proposal as outlined.

The overall totals indicated that 18 percent like the existing system, that 3 percent are not interested, and that 8 percent did not like the options put forward. In some of the latter cases persons were against the proposal, in other cases they wanted to exercise a right to vote on some other alternative which they provided.

A report on the response to the proposal for reorganization also has been made by the Office of Institutional Research. This report confirms our analysis of voting. Table 1, based on the report, is shown below. Besides providing a vote on five alternatives, comments were encouraged, especially to alternatives 2 (I support the proposal but with reservations) and 3 (I think restructuring is needed but along different lines). When comments were made they varied greatly in length, ranging from one sentence to several typewritten pages. The body of comments goes in several directions and is inconsistent along internal dimensions; e.g. some individuals criticized the proposal because of its inclusion of students within administrative structure while others felt that their powers should be broadened. Interestingly, those commenting under choice 2 and 3 were not always critical of the intent of the proposal. In a great number of instances, particularly among those who voted for choice 2, they wished for a further strengthening of the representative form of internal democracy argued for in the proposal.

The voting patterns do not appear to change greatly from one day to the other, suggesting that the AASUA objection did not invalidate the results, although it may have reduced the total vote, and probably did to some unknown extent. In support of this observation an appreciable drop in the rate of return seems to have occurred after the AASUA directive of 1 December.

It did not prove possible to separate full-time academic staff from the part-time staff and APOs, due to the nature of the mailing lists available; hence, all were mailed the package of information and ballot. The number of ballots actually mailed was 1,836 and 568 were returned, or 31 percent. This appears to be a good return and certainly all that was initially expected. It is particularly good because the materials were received from an ex officio group of staff and hence were materials that could not become directly operational. Sometimes educators may act upon a 10 percent response to mailed questionnaires, and the AASUA conducted a vote on the acceptability of the Academic Staff Agreement, which is one of the most critical documents imaginable for the University, and that resulted in only a 50 percent return (864 out of 1,708).

In sum, we think the proposal has had rather favorable reception and that the Chairmen's Committee has indeed touched an issue of very general concern throughout the University. While there has been some criticism of the Chairmen's Committee, we are the only group that has, to our knowledge, provided a coherent alternative for reform against which staff could gauge the present system.

We are grateful to staff who cooperated in making the information poll a success. The poll has demonstrated that many people in the University desire change in the University governing structure and the results are strongly suggestive of the direction in which change should go.

THE EMIL SKARIN MEMORIAL FUND

A Committee of the University Senate is engaged in selecting a project, or projects, worthy of financial support through interest earned by the Emil Skarin Memorial Fund. The amount available in any year will not normally exceed $5,000. Following instructions by the donor, projects must be of some value to the public as well as to the University, be consistent with the general aims and purposes

NON-CREDIT COURSES

CONSTRUCTION PROJECT PLANNING AND CONTROL

Three faculty members from Stanford University's graduate-level program in construction engineering and management will conduct a four-day seminar in Banff from 21 to 24 March on Construction Project Planning and Control. John W. Fondahl, Henry W. Parker, and Boyd C. Paulson, Jr., will conduct this seminar sponsored by the Faculty of Extension.

Among the topics to be discussed will be methods analysis and improvement, network planning and scheduling, resource allocation, management reports, cost control, and management attitudes related to safety. Emphasis will be on practical utilization of methods and overcoming obstacles to implementation.

The seminar will be of value to representatives of construction clients as well as to construction contractor personnel. Much of the material will be of interest to those persons engaged in other types of project endeavors.

Registrations are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall. The fee is $275 (this does not include accommodation at the Banff Springs Hotel). It is advisable to register early since only forty participants are being accepted. The registration deadline is 11 March. Detailed information about the seminar is available by calling 432-3037.

FIELD WORKSHOP: BRITISH MESOZOIC GEOLOGY RELATED TO NORTH SEA OIL AND GAS

The Faculty of Extension is offering a geological field workshop in England and Scotland from 7 to 19 May.

The main purpose of the excursion will be to study sections related to North Sea hydrocarbons. A full field guide will be provided which gives details of all sections to be visited. There will also be a series of lectures by leading British experts on the Mesozoic, giving background to the excursion. It is anticipated that there will be little time for participation in non-geological activities in order to maximize time spent in the field.

The registration deadline is 15 March. The packaged trip is $700 which includes tuition, field guide and notes, travel by coach around Great Britain, airfare from Inverness, Scotland to London, England, and hotel accommodation (bed and breakfast). Participants are expected to make their own travel arrangements to join the workshop group in London. A deposit of $350 must accompany registration with the balance due 15 April. Brochures outlining the field trip are available by calling 432-5038. Registrations are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall.

TAX SHELTERS

A one-day seminar on tax shelters will be held 5 March. The seminar is intended for owners and managers of private and professional companies, investors, and those persons in the business community who are interested in planned tax deferral.

Major topics to be covered are deferred income plans, farming, service and professional corporations, real estate, films, oil and gas properties, and equipment leases.

Registrations are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall. The fee is $75 and includes materials and lunch. Additional information is available by calling 432-5067.

ELEMENTS OF UNDERGROUND COAL MINE DESIGN

A two-day seminar on elements of underground coal mine design has been scheduled for 25 and 26 April. The seminar will be of interest to those who want to improve their understanding of the basic principles affecting the design of underground coal mines. People now in the coal mining business should find the seminar of immediate value and it will provide background for those planning future underground operations or for those working for government departments and regulatory agencies.

The stimulus for this particular continuing education program is the rapid return of coal as a national energy resource and a valuable export commodity. Topics to be covered include general consideration of strata control, principles of stress distribution, behavior of basic mine structures, and overlying strata deformations.

Registrations are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall. The fee is $75 and includes luncheons and materials. For detailed information call 432-3037.

MANAGEMENT OF TIME

The efficient management of time will be examined in a seminar to be held 10 and 11 February.

Seminar participants may expect to perform an activity breakdown; analyze time problems and opportunities; understand the concepts of time; participate in time-management experiential learning exercises; learn and understand the use of project planning, management information systems, and delegation as tools to manage time more effectively; and learn and understand how to save time through written communications, telephone usage, and to identify potential time-wasters.

Registrations for the seminar are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall and the fee is $120 including lunch and materials. Additional information is available by calling 432-5066.

AIRPHOTO INTERPRETATION

The principles, techniques, and applications of airphoto interpretation will be covered in a week-long course from 7 to 11 March. The course will provide an opportunity for engineers, earth scientists, and other professionals to learn and identify landforms in stereo.

Emphasis will be placed on the identification, compositions, and origin of various glacial and post-glacial landforms found throughout Canada and landforms that have developed in permafrost regions of northern Canada. The relationship of landforms to other aspects of the environment and to economic development will be discussed.

Registrations are accepted in 228 Corbett Hall. The fee is $180 and includes a $40 airphoto manual. Additional information is available by calling 432-5061.
